“Avalon park stony brook has mixed- part walkways by a lake, some through woods, some through fields. Located by Stony Brook village – It’s a nature preserve and really close to Stony Brook village as well as the docks. You can feed the ducks, have a picnic or hike and then go shopping and brunch. There is a part where you can just walk and observe nature as well as a part where you can rent boats off by the docks. The other side of the park also opens to where a lot of people take family pictures(including us!) my son 3 loves it since he was in my belly. The 1yr old also loves taking the stroll—usually packed in the summer but if you can go on a weekday it’s really nice—Avalon is great with well maintained hiking pathways. There is a walking labyrinth and a sculpture where you can insert letters to those who have passed. There is a meadow area, woods and pathways over/by the water.” LI Resident

" Bayard cutting arboretum in bay shore/Islip area. Many kinds of pathways and environments in one gorgeous spot, from asphalt (wheel friendly) to rocky and dirty path). Paths by the water/bay and paths through the tree lined woodsy area. They have chickens to feed and different seasonal plants growing all year long. One of the most incredible LI spots, truly. A gem! Our little guy is 3 and we've been going there since birth. It's a state park so when they are charging it's $8 to park. But they don't in the off season. Also free entry with empire pass." Elizabeth Morton (sag harbor) is a beautiful walk as well. Trail leads to a gorgeous beach on the north shore. Be sure to bring bird seed the birds will literally eat from your hand. LI RESIDENT

Elizabeth Morton Wildlife Sanctuary is in Sag Harbor. Lots of wildlife along the path and if you bring birdseed and stand on the path the birds will fly right into your hand to eat out of it (kids got a kick out of that). One of the paths opens to a private beach on the Peconic Bay so we packed a lunch and our suits and made a day of it.
